North Raids End

SAIGON — The United States today ended five consecutive days of air strikes against North Vietnam, the most sustained and most in-tense ever ordered by President Nixon. Already there was controversy over whether three planes lost in the raids with the loss of five airmen. Hanoi radio said 19 planes were shot down, eight of them today, and that two more pilots were captured. It gave no names and insisted the principal targets were civilian populated areas. In South Vietnam there were conflicting claims from military men on whether the raids succeeded and whether the real aim was to hit North Vietnamese missile sites and anti-aircraft batteries as the command said.

STILL ASSESSING

The command itself re-served judgment on whether the raids were a success, saying simply that bomb damage assessment was still in progress. High U.S. Air Force sources in Da Nang and Sai-gon reported the raids were very successful and told of fuel dumps, ammunition stockpiles and at least one port left in flames.

Officials actually involved

Officials actually involved in executing the strikes were skeptical. They said "as far as we can tell, the bombing was a real failure. We hit very little." they said because of the height the pilots were forced to bomb from and the fact that "could hardly." and the fact they could hardly see their targets through heavy clouds it was "impro-bable they hit much of any-viewed the air strikes as little more than a stunt necessitat-ed by a sudden rash of American planes shot down in Laos and North Vietnam two weeks ago. Four pilots captured at the time — before the five-day attack — were shown on U.S. television Wednesday

The officers said despite the command's report to the con-trary, virtually none of the targets assigned involved North Vietnam's anti-aircraft defences of the MiG jets that were responsible for three of the five American planes lost

Peterson was being questioned on earlier statements that he wants laws against top-less and bottomless dancing enforced.

He said today he hopes operators of nightclubs will voluntarily end such entertainment. But he gave no specific indication whether laws would be enforced to prevent it.

Peterson said discussions have taken place with Vancouver prosecutor Stewart McMorran on the subject, and McMorran confirmed that but declined to say what type of action could be expected.

Peterson said the Federal Criminal Code contains sections that could be applied against topless and bottomless dancing. He stressed that the laws are made by the federal government, not B.C.

NARAYANGANJ, East Pakistan (UPI) - A severe outbreak of cholera threatens the lives of the 30,000 Biharis held as prisoners without food or medical supplies in the world's biggest jute mill in this town 14 miles from Dacca.

Dr. Nazir Ahmed, medical officer at the jute mill, said "there are so many cases of cholera and starvation I can't count them all."

The Biharls are non-Bengali Moslems, most of whom came to East Pakistan from the west wing of the country. They are hated by the Bengali natives because they cooperated with the West Pakistan army. The Biharls say the Bengalis have killed 400 to 500 of them since Pakistan surrendered Dec. 16.

The Bengladesh government has denied them both food and medicine but an Indian army spokesman said arrangements were being made to bring in medical supplies because of the outbreak of cholera in the jute mill.

The Biharis are afreid to leave the mill for fear they will be killed by the Bengali guerrillas who call themselves the Mukti Bahini (freedom fighters). The Indians have placed a contingent of troops at the mill to protect those inside.

Maj. R. Kanwar, the Indian thoop commander, said he was arranging for medical supplies but that food would remain the biggest problem even if medical aid arrived. He said International Red Cross relief plans have been blocked by the Bangladesh property.

Nazir said the Indian army troops had stopped the kill-ings by the Mukti Bahini but that local police were looting houses in the town while searching for so-called collabora-

S. Munir Ahmed, secretary to the mill's general manager, said the weekly wage of about $9 was no longer being paid to the 8,000 employees who worked before the mill closed down on Dec. 1.

The employees and their families have run out of money and could not even go to Dacca under Indian army protection to buy food, Munir said.

"Even if we go outside, we cannot buy anything because we have no money," he said.

WASHINGTON Marshall Harlan, a U.S. Su-preme Court justice who repeatedly opposed use of the legal system as the machin-ery for social reform, died at age 72. His death in a Wash-ington hospital Wednesday prompted President Nixon to call Harlan "one of the 20th century's giants on the Supreme Court."

Harlan retired Sept. 23 after 18 years on the court.

ST. NAZAIRE, France - A 41-year-old truck driver was unimpressed by the death in Nantes last weekend of Alain Chevillard, 25, who had bet a friend he could drink more than a quart of eau de vie alcohol nonstop. Chevillard died trying.

The truck driver, whom police did not identify, told friends he could do the same thing and wake up the next morning in fine shape. His friends found him dead this morning, with an empty quart bottle of calvados apple brandy clutched in his hand.

YELLOWKKNIFE, N.W.T. A man and a teen-age boy were rescued by military air-craft Wednesday after spending 18 days camped in the open in the Arctic. HONG KONG - China gave an American Red Cross representative to day the ashes of Gerald Ross McLaughlin, an American yachtsman the Chinese said committed suicide in 1969 after a year in captivity. McLaughlin was detained with an American girl, Mary Ann Harbert, after his yacht allegedly strayed into Chinese territorial waters April 21, 1968, while sailing from Hong Kong to Manila. The Chinese said McLaughlin took his life March 7, 1969, while still under investigation. March 1, 1999, while still under investigation, Miss Har-bert, 26, and Richard Fec-teau, 43, who had been impro-soned by the Chinese for 19 years on charges of spying, were freed together Dec. 13.

dealers and automakers about the public rating proposal. Released with Mrs. Knauer's letter asking for suggestions were details and letters from her earlier efforts to improve repair service by offering incentives to dealers for superior service similar to the incentives of-fered by manufacturers for superior sales.

In a letter Oct. 1 to the automakers and the 21,000-member National Automobile Dealers' Association, she urged the big-four car manu-facturers to "provide addi-tional incentives for better dealer service above and beyond fair compensation for in-warranty repairs."

APPROVED IDEA

She said that American Motors Corp., Ford Motor-Co., and the NADA approved that idea while General Motors Corp., and Chrysler Corp., suggested other methods to improve repair service.

VOLCANO Whitbread Is Mum On Clinic Closure

Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, senior medical officer of the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health, today declined to discuss the reported closure of Esquimalt's wellbaby clinic

"I have no comment to make on whether it is open or shut," Whitbread said.

Mayor Arthur Young of Esquimalt Wednesday said that Whitbread had closed down the clinic a month ago, after it had been in operation for 25 years. It has not been operating for the past month.

Young said the reason behind the closure is that Whitbread is trying to force Esquimalt to build a public health centre. The well-baby clinic had been operating at Esquimalt United Church.

As a result, Esquimalt has balked at sharing with other member municipalities the cost of hiring a children's speech therapist, and has protested the closure.

It; will constitute, in fact, a very fine asset for the city by providing a balancing green area op-. posite the Empress and Legislative lawns. It will give impetus, too, to longer-range plans to create a pedestrian way along the whole Wharf-Street-seafront-

The manner in which the city's purchase was negotiated suggests that there was a fair amount of fogginess during the talks. City Council was prepared to give considerably better terms to the company - which naturally sought to get the best deal possible - than the company eventually was willing to accept. It was Mayor-elect Pollen's insistent argument that resulted in the city council revising its offer, and the public of Victoria will benefit to the extent that it will not have to pay $20,000 toward rock-blasting required by the -company, it will rent a closed street to the company in its new location instead of losing ownership, and it will have control of the waterlot lease at the closed end of Rock Bay Avenue. Payment of the $970,000 forthe Wharf Street property will be in three equal amounts, although Mr. Pollen had earlier tried to have most of the payment occur later in the 18-month payment period with a consequent saving in interest costs

The advantage of informed advice tenaciously advanced has been made evident in this handling of public funds. The whole Wharf Street episode - including the parkland deal and the Reid proposal - could well be used by the 1972 council as an object lesson, partly in what to do, and certainly in what not to do.

The basic fault seems to have been a gap between the thinking of Council and that of the public it serves; a lack of communication hard to avoid when the public is slow to make its wishes known but definitely necessary to surmount if a lot of Council's time and effort is not eventually to be spent in second looks and revilessness and uncertainty are features of Quebec life that failed to diminish during the past year.

Despite relative calm in comparison to the tragic and violent events of 1970, Quebec's search for identity and the question of whether it will define its role within or outside Confederation re-mained as unsettled as ever.

Against a background of sensational trials in the wake of the FLQ crisis, a continuing controversy over language rights and a frustrating stalemate constitutional talks, Premier Robert Bourassa continued to struggle with a stagnant economy which he sees as the root of many of Quebec's problems.

High unemployment left 160,000 to 170,000 people without work most of the year, providing a more fertile climate for those who claim Quebee would fare better as an independent state with a radically different social order.

In fact, there was a growing polarization on the federalism separatism issue, and a continuation of all the major rifts that have divided Quebec society since the first stirrings of the Quiet Revolution nearly a dozen years ago.

Discouraging Record

For Premer Bourassa, the last 12 Aside" from the state of the economy, there was little evidence he succeeded in the promise after his April, 1970, election that he would transform the National Assembly into an efficient, businesslike operation. Debate bogged down on a series of important bills, and the most day with a huge backlog of unfinished business. The government will now have to wait until well into the new year to finalize legislation streamlining school boards, social welfare administration and other matters. singly frustrated in his constitutional discussions with Ottawa and the other provinces. The failure of the other govern ments to accede to his demand for jurisdiction over all "social" legislation led to the premier's decision to scuttle the Victoria constitutional charter last summer. He has apparently had little success since then in attempts to achieve greater co-ordination with Ottawa on economic planning or a deal by which the federal government would mail baby bonus cheearmarked for the province would be legislative session, claim jurisdiction over cable television for the province And, during an investment-seeking trip to New York City last March, he conducted a news conference almost entirely in French even though most of the reporters present were Americans who couldn't understand a word he said.

Both situations point to the problems of a federalist Quebec government and its leader in 1971. Aside from pleasing his own supporters, Mr. Bourassa niust also be constantly on the lookout to avoid provoking the type of nationalist demonstrations that seriously hurt the previous end that the once-powerful U-N organiza-tion has failed to recover from its 1970 election setback, despite a new leader -Gabriel Loubier - and a new name, Unite Quebec.

With only 17 seats in the 108-seat National Assembly, the rurally-oriented official opposition has been overtaken in debates by the more vigorous Parti Quebecois. Even though the PQ holds only seven seats (the Creditistes have 12), it attracted 23 per cent of the popular vote in the 1970 election and has been behaving like the official opposition.

During the past year, the PQ demonstrated that it had survived the bad publicity of the FLQ crisis - going on to slightly increase its share of the vote, though losing out to the Liberals, in the byelection caused by the murder of Labor Minister Pierre Laporte. However, the Pequistes were also troubled by falling membership in the lull between election years, strained finances, and increasing dissent from the radical wing. Party leader Rene Levesque feels the PQ is on the threshold of power - but only if it can maintain the "respectability" of the separatist option with average, middle-class voters.

The dispute within the PQ came to a head when the party refused to participate in an Oct. 29 demonstration to protest the shutdown of the Montreal news-

The demonstration, in which more than 100 policemen and protesters were injured and one woman died of an asthma attack, also marked a turning point for the Quebec labor movement.

The La Presse shutdown and demonstration have become symbols for Quebec's left wing, and the reason for unprecedented attempts by major labor groups to end their traditional rivalries. ebec Federation of Labor, an affiliate of the Canadian Labor Congress has since tacked an increasingly radical course, bringing it ideologically closer to the Confederation of National Trade Unions and the main teachers' syn-

Premier Bourassa will face the tough, radicallized union movement early in 1972 as his government begins contract negotiations with 250,000 public service employees.

However, more trying than union ressure for Mr. Bourassa in the new Vear will be the embarrassment of unfulfilled election promises. The job of leading the Quebec government won't get any easier in 1972, which will likely see continuation of this year's quiet crisis of identity and uncertainty.

More Than Pious Hope

is something more than a pious hope. It is not assured, and it is certainly not accompanied by much "good will among men," but there are some solld reasons for believing that, while short and vi-cious wars for limited ends will probably always be with us, we may very well avoid in the last third of the century the wars of the giant nations that convulsed world in the first and second thirds of the 20th century.

1. The main reason is that the United States, the Soviet Union, and China simply have more to lose than to gain by risking general war, and that nuclear war, which would be almost unavoidable in any conflict between the major powers, is clearly too dangerous to be waged for anything less than the life of

2. There is not only a new balance of atomic power in the world, but a new political balance as well, with Europe gaining in unity and strength, and Japan and China establishing new power centres of their own, which are likely to make common cause against any other nation that threatens the security of the civilized

Nuclear Threat Recedes

3. It is no longer necessary for any nuclear power to wage or even threaten war in order to gain access to raw materials or markets essential to maintain a good standard of life for their people Even on the question of the relative value of currencies, the major financial nations have managed to reach at least a tentative agreement, and while 1972 will be a year of hard bargaining over trade, there is clear evidence that they will be able to agree on regulations at least as effective - and probably more so - as those in force since the last world war.

This is far from an ideal or even satisfactory foundation for the organization and co-operation of the human family. 'And it is true that false and even silly optimism contributed mightily to the two unimaginable tragedies of 1914 and 1939, but the recent divisions and pessimism also lead to desperation, so the progress toward accommodation among the major formed. Moscow has stopped ranting about the "vengeful Fascists" in West Germany, and is easing the tensions over Berlin, negotiating arms control in Vienna and Helsinki, and talking business with the U.S., Germany, and Japan.

Meanwhile, China has come out of isolation, and is now not only taking its place in the United Nations, but is serving there as a powerful spokesman of the under-developed countries, who are in danger of being oxerlooked in the new share-the-wealth arrangements among

Still, there are great dangers at the end of 1971, and the greatest of these, ironically, centres on the conflict be-tween Israel and the Arab states, even on Jerusalem, the symbol of man's hope

This will take some careful handling in 1972, if another war is to be avoided, but even in the Middle East, while Moscow and Washington are on opposite sides war at best, or staying out of it at worst

There is another great potential danger, for like the Israeli-Arab conflict it involves not only geography but philosophy and even theology, and this is the conflict between China and the Soviet

Long before the recent war between India and Pakistan, with the U.S. on one side and the Soviet Union on the other, I asked Couve de Murville, who was then the Ambassador of France to the U.S.before he became President de Gaulle's Foreign Minister and Premier whether he thought he would ever see another major war in our time. I asked him this because we were at a birthday party and happened to be almost precisely the same age.

Russo-Chinese War?

No, he said, he didn't think so, but maybe there would be one great war in the last third of the century: between Russia and China over India. It seemed a fantastic suggestion at the time, after the events of the last few weeks. one wonders in the night.

Even so, at the end of 1971, something has to be said for the possibility of peace, even in secular terms. Certainly not in terms of peace or understanding, and "Goodwill" but in terms of the absence of major war. The accommodations of power, and the fear of war have given us time to think about what to do. They have not settled anything but they have given us a chance to talk about the things that unite the nations instead of concentrating on the things that divide them and lead them to war.

The question for 1972 is how to use the time that is gained by avoiding the big wars, and who will use it in America and in other major nations to get beyond the mere absence of war to a constructive and co-operative peace for the whole human family.

Kashmiri Plight

The article on the Indo-Pakistan conflict by your columnist, Mr. Woodrow Wyatt, is very interesting, but while I agree with him on the subject of Bangla Desh, I think he is a bit mixed on the subject of Kashmir, which State I visited last March.

It is true that about 80 per cent of the Kashmiris are Muslims, but this does not mean that they want to be part of Pakistan! In 1947, after Indedpendence, Pakistani raiders invaded Kashmir, committing all manner of evils in the process including the bombing and desecration of mosques, so that the ruler of the State Maharaja Hari Singh, appealed to India for help and then acceded to India. When the Indian Forces marched into Kashsisting the Pakistani invaders, welcomed them as liberators. In 1965, when the Pakistanis again invaded Kashmir,, the they did in 1945. Under the Indian Constitution, complete freedom of worship is guaranteed to adherents of all faiths, and the State of Jammu and Kashmir a voice through its elected representatives in the affairs of India in the Central Government in New Delhi. I'm afraid those Kashmiris who live in the so-called "Free Azad" zone under Pakistan do not have such rights!"

I agree with Mr. Wyatt that many or even most Kashimiris would like to be inthis can only come about when the Pa-kistanis, who have no right to any part of Kashmir without the consent of the people, vacate the part they have occupied. UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE AND YOU

Most people know they will be covered by unemployment insurance starting January 2. That we cover sickness and maternity. They know about the retirement benefit. That a minimum of eight weeks qualifies them for some benefit. That benefits have increased. But what about the other changes?

The waiting period . . . how the system works.

A claim is filed. Weeks one and two are the waiting period and no benefit is payable, but report cards must be returned. Weeks three and four are generally the first weeks for which benefit is paid. At the end of the fourth week the report cards are returned. Then the first cheque is issued. There are exceptions...money received when you leave work may affect your claim, and there's advance pay for those who qualify.

The separation certificate ... what it is.

Starting in January; the separation certificate will be your only record of insured employment. Without it, a claim cannot be processed. Always include it with your application.

Changes for employers...

Starting in January, the Department of National Revenue-Taxation will collect premiums. December, 1971 premiums must be submitted to the UIC. January onward, all premiums -will be sent to National Revenue.

Separation certificate may affect premium rate . . .

Every employee who has an interruption of earnings of seven or more days must receive a separation certificate within five days of the last day worked. The information on the certificate may affect your premium rate when merit rating is phased in starting in 1974.

'Main Source of Instability' Removed from Economy

MONTREAL (CP) — N. R. Crump, chairman of Cahadian Pacific Ltd., says the recently-concluded international in-concluded international monetary agreement has removed an important source of instability from the international economic scene.

"There is optimism that the rformance of the economy will improve in 1972," he said in a year-end statement released Wednesday. Economic conditions in 1971 have had a more serious ef-fect on Canadian Pacific Investments Ltd., said Mr.

Forestry executives are uncertain about the industry's outlook for 1972 because B.C.'s forest industry is irrevocably tied to the fortunes of the United States.

Even before the 10-per-cent U.S. surcharge was removed, it caused the industry less concern than the increased value of the Canadian dollar.

The industry's competitive position is improved if the dollar is valued at the money markets several cents below the U.S. dollar.

J. V. Clyne, chairman of MacMillan Bloedel Ltd., said the best news for the industry in 1971 was the increase in housing starts in both the U.S. and Canada. The result was a stepped to the said of the light of the stronger demand for building materials "which has been re-sponsible for much of the improvement in earnings from the very depressed levels of

More Housing

Industry spokesmen predicted housing starts in the U.S. will probably total two million this year compared with 1.5 million in 1970 and 1.9 million number 220,000 units this year and residential construction expenditures would be up 20 per cent over last year.

Clyne blamed low profits in the industry this year partly on the "poor performance in the newsprint sector." But he predicted a moderate increase in the demand for sprint in the U.S. next

Sales

Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd. expects its sales this year to exceed $200 million with net earnings of about $8.5 million.

"There's been some recov ery this year," said company president Bob Rogers, "and sales and earnings in 1972 should be moderately higher than in 1971 because of stronger economies in Canada and the U.S. and improved building material markets."

But the ground rules have been changed for exporting companies with the revalua-tion of the Canadian and U.S. dollars, Rogers said. "As a result, I don't think we can expect for some time to see earnings restored to the levels of 1960."

In 1969 the company's net earnings were $13.8 million. Rogers said each percentage point change in value between the U.S. and Canadian dollars represents $1 million in pretax earnings for his company.

VANCOUVER (CP) — A small group of shareholders of International Mariner Resources Ltd. of Vancouver approved a resolution at the company's annual meeting here Wednesday giving management the right to amend the terms and conditions of its outstanding C warrants.

Another resolution passed by the shareholders gives m agement the right to divest itself of certain holdings in the shares of Saskoba Mines Inc.

Present at the meeting was company secretary J. A. Gilbert, president Norton Cooper of Toronto, two shareholders and the company's lawyer B. Nixon Apple of Toronto.

A minority shareholder, Terry Howes of Toronto, was prevented from attending the meeting after it was discovered that his shares of International Mariner were held in street form. Street form means that the shares are not held in the individual's name althugh he does own them.

Howes said after the meeting that he had intended to move a 30-day adjournment of the meeting to clarify a nber of discrepancies.

He said that according to the annual report International He said that according to the annual report International Mariner is shown to have 645,000 escrowed shares of Saskoba Mines Inc. But in the information circular sent out to shareholders giving notice of the annual meeting that the Saskoba holding was shown as 745,000 shares.

Although International Mariner is a public company that trades on the Vancouver Stock Exchange, reporters were barred from attending the meeting.

The company's annual report also says that International Mariner intends to purchase 100,000 units of America Recording Limited if that minimum amount isn't sold to the public.

The report notes that a final prospectus for the issuing of 200,000 units at $2.65 per unit is in the final stages before being filed with the Ontario Security Commission.

Final Arrangements Made For Takeover of Granby

Final arrangements are being made to complete the take-over of Granby Mining Co. Ltd. and its subsidiary, Gran-isle Copper Ltd., by Zapata Norness Inc. of Houston, Tex.

Directors of the three com-panies announced Wednesday they have approved in princi-ple an agreement for Zapata pie an agreement for Zapata to acquire Granby and Gran-isle through a statutory amal-gamation of the two compa-nies into a wholly-owned Za-pata subsidiary, Zapata-Granby Ltd.

Hunters Also Contribute To Welfare of Wildlife

"I was in this area last Saturday, to discover an appalling situation; two hunters (so-called) had been firing at seagulls, beer bottles, etc. and then had seen the first two spawning salmon to enter the saltwater lagoon. They then waded out to them and shot

This paragraph taken from a recent letter to the Canadian Wildlife Service is the crux of what is becoming a very vocal campaign against the hunter.

I do not think for one moment that any hunter who has just read this excerpt has not winced. Certainly the true hunter would never laud this form of behaviour, in actual fact he would have reported the incident immediately to the R.C.M.P., which unfortunately, the individual witnessing the above incident did not.

It was just this form of grotesque and irresponsible act witnessed by members of the B.C. Wildlife Federation, the voice of organized hunters and anglers, which led to the adoption of the Federation Rewards Fund for information leading to the conviction of "shooters" and others for irresponsible acts against wildlife. This $500 reward sponsored and paid for by the sportsmen of B.C. has been presented to a number of persons for reporting just such acts as the one mentioned above.

My own concern for the vecest vector upressorable anti-huntered.

My own concern for the vocal yet unreasonable anti-hunt-ing sentiment this past fall led to correspondence with Dr. James Hatter, director of the fish and wildlife branch. Following are excerpts from Hatter's reply!

* * * 'In the past few months I have participated in discussion

"In the past few months I have participated in discussions on this subject at meetings in Toronto and Salt Lake City and I would like to comment for the benefit of your readers.

In a free but complex democratic society such as ours it is only natural that more than just a few people will dislike the thought of animals being killed by people. Strangely enough however, there is less reason for people to criticize the hunter than ever before. Collectively, hunters have done more directly or indirectly for the preservation of wildlife in recent years than any other group of people. If it were not for hunters and hunting, millions and millions of dollars would not have been spent throughout the continent on wildlife refuges, big game habitat, research, costly management programs and a great many influential national and international wildlife associations would not exist today. Let no one believe that thousands of pro-would not exist today. Let no one believe that thousands of professionally trained wildlife biologists would be in state and provincial employ today if it were not for hunting.

If it were not for the millions of dollars that hunters provide annually for management of wildlife resources we would have less wildlife than we have today and much of what. we had would be considered vermin, predators and a nuisance to our way of life.

In my opinion, Barry, the anti-hunting criticism is actually a threat to wildlife rather than a saviour as the proponents would purport to be the case. On the other hand the "hunter," who for the moment let's separate from the "shooter," ought to be considered the great champion of wildlife conservation and

Almost every action to stop destructive practices such as market hunting and other forms of over-exploitation have originated from the concern of hunters.

It is just inconceivable how some people complain about the motives of hunters. Fortunately, they are a small minority and let us not over-react to their actions but rather try to have them understand what type of person the hunter is and what ef-them understand what type of person the hunter is and what effect he has on the hunted in comparison to other influences.

It is difficult to find just who the people are who condemn hunting and why they feel as they do. We must be patient with these people and try to have them understand how important it is that we have hunters and hunting. At the same time we must encourage the hunter to try to see himself in the eyes of those, who while they do not necessarily criticize hunting, do feel strongly about the actions of irresponsible hunters who of course give a had name to the majority.

course give a bad name to the majority.

I would like to think that gradually we can develop better hunting ethics through education, more contacts in the field between hunters and our staff and a greater sense of indignation by the good hunter towards irresponsible acts of their "blast-

Somehow we must try to develop a better mixture of sustained game harvest principles with more impressive behaviour on part of the hunters. If we can do this we will be able to stand strong in the fact of anti-hunting emotion and our hunt-ers will be recognized for what they stand for, what they have done and can do for wild life rather than what they appear to be doing to wildlife."

CHICAGO (AP) — Jim Doo-ley, 41, was dismissed as head coach of Chicago Bears Wednesday with one year remaining on a five-year contract. Owner George Halas, making the announcement per-sonally, said that the Bears are open for applicants to fill Dooley's position. Halas said the reason for dismissing Dooley can best be put bluntly that "the record speaks for itself."

He added that the new coach would be in full charge of selecting his own assistants or of keeping any of Dooley's Halas said that he blocked all thoughts of the coaching situation from his mind after the final game, a 27-10 beating by Minnesota, and waited until after the Christmas holiday before giving serious thought to the matter. He said that the decision was made Wednesday morning, that Wednesday morning, that Dooley was called in for a conference and that an-nouncement was made to re-porters even before the assistant coaches were told. .

George Halas Jr., president and general manager of the Bears, was asked what Doo-ley had to say.

"Dooley said he was disappointed but understood and took it all very graciously," the younger Halas said. "Dooley also said that he hoped he could remain with the organization."

Organist Shows Potential But Timing Misses Mark

Times Staff

Wednesday's performance at Christ Church Cathedral by 14-year-old organist Gordon Zeller showed the tremendous potential of this young or-ganist, but also showed elenents of artistic immaturity.

Zeller's major problem was that he couldn't manage to sustain the emotion of a work and simultaneously give a technically proficient performance.

This problem was very evident in one piece, Vierne's Carillon de Westminster. In this extremely difficult piece, the left hand plays the chimes of a grandfather clock, while the right hand plays a continuous trill.

Zeller started off well, but the trills became increasingly less precise, and the left hand melody sometimes failed to synchronize with the trills, thus the tone of the work seemed strained.

SAME PROBLEM

In Bach's Prelude and Fugue in G, the same problem was evident. The con-trapuntal themes of the two hands often missed timing with each other, causing a muddy sound. Because of the technical difficulty, a pause toward the end, and the slowed tempo in the final bars seemed forced.

Although artistic strain caused inconsistencies in the total performance, there were

Among these were Parvis'

Capriccio on the Notes of the Cuckoo, Wright's Brother James' Air, and Alain's The Suspended Garden.

Each of these was well played, and musically sensitive. In each, the tone of the work was beautifully sustained from beginning to end.

The surprise marriage of Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau to 22-year-old Mar-garet Sinclair in North Vancouver, last March 4 was Capada's top news story of 1971.

The story broke at 8:48 p.m. March 4 when a Trudeau aide 'telephoned the Vancouver bu-reau of The Canadian Press with the surprise announce-ment that the prime minister had married the daughter of James Sinclair, former Lib-eral fisheries minister...

Another chapter in the Tru-deau story started when Mrs. Trudeau gave birth to a son in Ottawa on Christmas Day.

The marriage story was the overwhelming favorite of newspaper editors and broad-casters in a year-end poll conducted by CP. Selections were ducted by CP. Selections were made by editors representing CP member newspapers and radio and television stations served by CP's associated company, Broadcast News

Freighter Meets Her City

Victoria City meet the city of Victoria.

There was no such formal introduction when the 27,000-ton bulk earrier Victoria City eased into her berth at Ogden Point this week, one year and five days after her launching. The formality came today when Mayor Courtney Haddock boarded the British boat named after this city. There was an appealing speech, recited in unison by the

'The mayor presented the girls' father, Capt. James Murray, with a pewter plate, emblazoned with the city's coat of arms.

She said there was no purpose in having Mace appear because the bylaw had no connection with his proposals. Minutes later she warned council that if quick action was not taken the developer and Newport merchants who are joining him on his scheme might lose their options.

Smith said: "You don't go around designating develop-ment areas like squirts of un-

It was "a very good year"—the best since 1965—for blood donations from Victorians, Charles MacNeill, supervisor of the Red Cross blood donor panel, said today.

Out of 51 clinics held during 1971, 8,840 donors registered, with 366 rejections, for a total of 8,474 units of blood, which is 1,555 units better than last year when 55 clinics were held.

Danger! Good Resolutions at Work

THIS QUIET BYE-WEEK between Christmas past and New Year's coming has always been one of my favorite times. Nobody works any harder than need be. The old year is too far gone to worry about, and its successor re-mains a sealed package not to be opened until January. But it's also a week beset by a lurking danger. These are days when the unwary can fall prey to the mania for self-improvement that finds ex-pression in the New Year's

The good resolution is more than an unwise defy to the grinning fates. It is a contract that no person in a state less than fatuous would enter into.

But hope springs eternal. Even though I have never kept a New Year's Resolution intact longer than the first Monday in January, the urge to mend my faults still sneaks up on me during this week of half, reveals a dispute within the United States government over whether society should tolerate "insignificant" levels of cancer-promoting substances in foods.

The report illuminates the "tradeoff" problem — ultimately a political one — of balancing the risks of modern living against the costs of making our surroundings completely

An effective program to protect mankind from cancer-fostering chemicals in the environment is "within reach," but will require "a national commitment commensurate with the problem," the report said.

problem," the report said.

Many such chemicals, known as carcinogens, "occur almost ubiquitously in our modern industrialized environment" and pollute the air, soil, water and food, the report said. Yet, the authors said, progress in the last decade in detecting and analysing carcinogens, along with "new approaches" to interpreting relationships between man's exposure to them and cancer, makes "the majority of human cancers... potentially preventable.

The report has important implications not only for those in the Nixon administration who shape the battle against cancer with decisions on budgeting, priorities and legislation, but also for numerous industries and federal agencies.

'Fully Protected'

Cattle and sheep raisers, for example, increase the weight of livestock with a feed containing a synthetic estrogen (DES: Diethylstilbesterol) that causes cancer in laboratory, animals. The U.S. agriculture department and the Food and Drug Administration say the public is fully protect-test potent new medicines in thousands of humans even before they complete experiments intended to find out if the drugs cause caneer in animals. In some cases, cancer was found in animals while human testing was under way.

Although the government report has gone unnoticed by the general public, it has triggered a sharp, behind-the-scenes dispute with the prestigious National Academy of Sciences-National Research Council.

DOUBLE KNITTING WOOL

At issue were guidelines that the food protection commit-tee of the NAS-NRC laid down two years ago for "tox-icologically insignificant" levels of carcinogens in foods levels of exposure that, under certain conditions, supposedly

But the government report, made by a committee of eight leading scientists to Surgeon General Jesse L. Steinfeld, flatly, rejected the concept of "insignificant" exposures.

It is "impossible to establish any absolutely safe levels of exposure to a carcinogen for man" the committee said.

Cyclamate Triggered Probe

The committee that reported to Dr. Steinfeld — four scientists from the national institutes of health and four from the academic community — wos formed by the surgeon-general in October, 1969, after the discovery of bladder cancer in rats that were fed cyclamate, the synthetic sweetener. The chairman was Dr. Umberto Saffiotti, associated scientific director for carcinogenesis of the National Cancer Institute.

Dr. Steinfeld told a reporter that, partly as a result of the report, the budget for testing chemical carcinogens has increased from about $11 million in fiscal 1971 to about $19 million in fiscal 1972.

The committee, emphasizing that it takes 15 or more years for carcinogens in man's environment to reveal their cancer-promoting effects, said it is "urgent that every effort cancer-promoting effects, said it is "urgent that every effort be made to detect and control sources of carcinogenic contamination." This can be reliably done only with high-quality long-term biological tests in animals, the report said.

"The expanding production and use of chemicals in household products results in extensive human exposure (via the skin and respiratory tract) to dusts and aerosols; little information is available on the chronic toxicity of these materials by these routes of administration," the committee, said. It would not be wise to await the results of these experiments als by these routes of administration," the committee, said. It would not be wise to await the results of these experiments in man before instituting animal experimentation.

As "a first screening of the environment," the committee said, up to 20,000 substances should be tested, at an estimated cost of at least one billion dollars. The committee said, however, that even if the money were to be made available, the laboratory and professional resources to use it properly are currently wholly insufficient.

Ne erday Holds Pride of Place

Christmas is becoming more popular in Scotland, but the Scots still hold strongly to their traditional recognition of the New Year as the main holiday. FEARFUL FIRSTBORN' FRUIT OF RESEARCH

WASHINGTON (UPI) - A couple of university psychologists reported recently that first-born children are much more fearful than younger members of the same family.

Their study recalled one of several years ago in which another university psychologist concluded that first-borns are more likely to amount to something in the world than the later arrivals.

The two findings do not seem to contradict each other, and the reasons offered to explain them are similar.

Frank H. Farleviof the University of Wisconsin at Madison and Wallace L. Mealiea of Indiana State University gave what they called a standardized fear test to 148 college than their younger kids "in social and inter-personal situations such as being alone and parting from friends," Farley said.

"These results," he reported, seem to support other research indicating that first-form to group pressures, and more dependent on others."

. Why? One reason may be that parents usually expect more of their first child than they demand of later ones, and put greater pressure on the first-born to succeed.

Another may be that parents are over-anxious about their first child and communicate to it their own fears.

Five years ago Prof. William D. Altus of the University of California at Santa Barbara reported on research which included a study going back nearly 100 years of prominent achievers in many fields.

"In England and in the United States," Altus reported, "there appears to be an indubitable relation of birth order to the achievement of eminence, however it has been defined. The dice are loaded in favor of the first-born.

Altus had suggested that the cause might lie in the way parents treat their first off-spring. Such a child may be more thoroughly disciplined than later ones, but tends to "run

COLOMBO (AP) — A draft epublican constitution for ceylon providing for breaking all imperial ties with Britain was presented Wednesday to the island's Constituent As-sembly by Dr. Colvin Regin-ald De Silva, constitutional affairs minister.

The draft constitution already has been accepted by the cabinet and since the government party commands an overwhelming majority in the assembly it is expected to become the substance of the country's new constitution.

come the substance of the country's new constitution. Former prime minister Wi-jayananda Dahanayaka ob-jected to the final stage of Ceylon's constitution-making at a time when public meet-ings are restricted under emergency laws clamped down after last April's abortive insurrection.

The assembly now has to decide whether De Silva's draft is in accordance with the basic resolutions adopted by the assembly.

Thereafter, the main task remaining will be to whip the draft into final shape.

The minister already has announced that he expects the work of the assembly to be completed by mid-February.

Put Christmas Trees To a Second Use

For safety's sake, move the Christmas tree outdoors before New Year's Eve.

Each day indoors it becomes more brittle, for you are likely to forget the adding of water to the container,

No need to burn the tree yet, you can enter it on another era of usefulness as a feeding station for birds.

If the ground is frozen at the time, you will need to lash the tree securely to a wire fence or something solid to keep it upright.

In most years we can set it upright by thrusting the butt into soft soil and tying to a stake like we do a young fruit

Pieces of suet fat with the skin still on (ask for this at meat counters, you will get it free for the birds), are favorite treats for birds in winter.

They need the fat to generate heat. Birds also need grit to go with their food; put some fine sand among fird seed in a half coconut shell hung in the Christmas tree.

A piece of wooden log with holes drilled and filled with melted fat with some fine sand pressed into it will attract Shallow wooden receptacles made from scrap wood in the shape and size of a large matchbox are fine for children to make for bird feeders. Make a hood over one end, like a doll's or baby's cradle, to give protection from wind Nail the box to a flat, wider piece of wood for easy tacking to one of the side branches. Even insect-eating birds like woodpeckers and jays will come for suct, as well as chickadees.

Mixed grains are fine for birds as for humans, nutrition value is higher in most commercial breadcrumbs.

A shallow discarded baking tin having a half-inch rim, and preferably well darkened with years of use, is good as a quick, ready-made feeding tray for birds.

Nail it in two or three places for security to a branch. Have it at a height you can easily reach for refilling, yet not accessible to cats. The birds don't like you around too long. They get suspicious.

Sunflower seeds — some in shells, some out — peanuts in pieces and even peanut butter pressed into shallow pans, all are relished by winter bird visitors.

Avoid quick movements when bird-watching from windows. The birds may take a few days before coming to your Christmas tree station but they will eventually appreciate your kindly attentions.

SOLUTION FRIDAY

By FRED KARPIN

In today's deal, which came up in the 1971 World Championships between the victorious U.S. team and the French team, the Issue was whether to take a 50-50 finesse or, instead, to hope that a certain key card was in the hand or, instead, to hope that a cer-tain key card was in the hand of one specific defender, rather than the other. The U.S. declarer made the cor-rect play. The French de-clarer didn't. North-South vulnerable. South deals.

sequence when Bobby Gold-man, of the U.S. team was in the South seat.

Dummy's queen of clubs captured the opening lead, after which a low diamond was led, South finessing his queen successfully. The board was then entered via the ace of hearts, and another diamond was led. Declarer now had five heart tricks, three had five heart tricks, three diamonds, and one club.

When the deal was replayed with the French team holding the North-South cards, South the North-South cards, South also arrived at a three no-trump contract. The seven of clubs was again led, and dummy's queen captured the trick. But the French declarer did not attack in the diamond suit. Instead, he led a low spade off the board.

In leading a spade, it was South's hope that West (rather than East) processed the spade ace. Had such been the case, at least three spade tricks would have been created while, simultaneously, clubs would effectively pre-vent West from cashing more than one club trick. Had West possessed the spade ace, South would have made, as an absolute minimum, three spades, five hearts, one or two diamonds; and one club.

But when South led a low spade off dummy at trick two, East played his ace. He then returned a club, entrapping South's king, and enabling West to cash four club tricks. Thus the French declarer suffered a one-trick set.

The American player's finesse in diamonds was the superior play. Even if West had possessed the diamond king, declarer would still have had a good chance of fulfilling his contract.

Assuming that West re-turned a heart after winning his (hypothetical) king of diamonds, dummy's ace would win, and then a spade would be led. If West had the spade ace, declarer would now have a guaranteed contract. In a guaranteed contract. In short, as our American declarer played the hend, he had two chances for the price of one: either the diamond king in the East hand or, failing that the spade acc. in ing that, the West's hand. the spade ace in

Fighting the Gonorrhea Epidemic

I feel it is important to keep mentioning the fact that gonorrhea has become an epidemic today, especially among youngsters of high school age. There is good reason to worry because gonorrhea is often unrecognized and unsuspected when it fails to produce any pain, burning or discharge.

There comes to mind a very young patient of mine who got infected with gonorrhea. Unfortunately the germs which infected him were so accustomed to being attacked by penicillin that they didn't "pay any attention" to the drug — perhaps they even thrived on it.

It is unfortunate hat many people have the mistaken idea that gonorrhea is hardly more serious than a cold. Recently I saw a fine young man who said that for the last 10 years since getting gonorrhea he has suffered every day of his life with a most uncomfortable urinary bladder and a "prostatitis."

Also I see in my mind's eye a number of young women who got infected with gonorrhea, and before they knew they had it, it had spread up into their pelvis and had caused a peritonitis (inflammation of the peritoneum, or inner lining of the abdominal eavity) similar to that which forms after a person's appendix has ruptured. As a result, they were very uncomfortable.

And I have seen perhaps a hundred women who sadly said that the child they so longed for would never come to them. Gonorrhea had gone into their fallopian tubes (which run off from each side of the upper end of the womb to the ovories), and plugged them up. That means that these women can never become pregnant.

Occasionally, I have seen a man with a severe inflammation of one knee joint due to gonorrhea that had escaped unscathed from a good and strenuous treatment.

Another danger of gonorrhea that must be considered is the damage it can do when a husband or wife gets the disease from a third party. I can remember women whose marriages went sour when they discovered that the wedding present; that their husband had given them was gonorrhea. Such a situation can put up a wall between a husband and wife that can sometimes never be broken down.

I am happy to see that it is becoming legal in some states for a physician to treat a youngster who is not yet "of age," without informing the parents. This is so important, because a youngster will often say, "I would rather die than let my parents find out" will often say, "I would rather die than let my parents find out" about a case of gonorchea or syphilis, a pregnancy out of wedlock, or even that a girl is taking contraceptive pills.

Theoretically, the parents should know about such important matters in their child's life. But, practically, the presence of restrictive laws on the books means a youngster will often choose to go without medical care, which may mean permanent harm or even death.

Now I read that the drug ampicillin, perhaps plus some probenecid, taken by mouth, can cure 100 per cent of the pa-

BEFORE JUDGE

A 21-year-old man was sentenced to four years in prison Wednesday by Judge M. L. T. Drake of Victoria county court for possession of heroin for the purposes of traffick-Allan Myron Blocka was found guilty by Drake Dec. 15. The charge involved 39-capsules of heroin found at the accused's residence by police last Feb. 2.

Defence counsel Ted Pollard, before sentence was passed, said Blocka when arrested used as much as 10 to 15 capsules of heroin a day. Pollard said his client had been in custody since his ar-rest in February and was not involved in a large wholesale trafficking operation. Prosecutor Rodney Taylor said delays in bringing the accused to trial after he was ar-rested had been requested by Blocka or his counsel and not the Crown.

The judge said that while the accused may have not been a heroin wholesaler evi-dence revealed he was sub-stantially involved as a re-Pollard said later his client

The job would cost about $1 million, Bawlf says.

The building's 70,000 square feet of office space are mostly unused, but a retail store is operating on the ground floor.

Bawlf said he believes his firm, Fort Victoria Ltd., is the only company interested in renovating the building in its present form.

its present form. His plans include some face-lifting, no change of present design.

The building was constructed at the turn of the century.

BONUS PLAN LURES FEMALE TEACHERS

CAIRO (UPI) - The governor of the district of Mersa Matrouh has offered a bonus of $130 to female teachers who marry their male counterparts from rural areas. Most female teachers refuse to move from towns to farm areas because they would feel lonely, the governor said.

An additional problem is that conservative Egyptian rural families don't want to send their own daughters to schools where there are only male teachers. To solve both problems the governor hopes to attract more female teachers to the rural areas with his bonus idea.

By The Canadian Press

One could hardly blame Canada's rich people for moving to Alberta.

Of all the provinces, it is the only one which will not have succession duties or a gift tax come Tuesday.

In a series of announcements Wednesday, the other proves set out their policies on the two items which are bound to add to the provincial coffers.

Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed made his government's

"We don't think a tax of this type is productive and we have taken the position in the past that as far as our administration is concerned we are not involved with the question of

The Atlantic provinces, Manitoba and Saskatchewan announced plans to introduce the succession and gift taxes, effective Jan. 1, 1972. The move follows the federal government's intention to vacate this field of taxation at the end of Ontario, Quebec and British Columbia already Impose succession duties. All provinces except Alberta will have the same gift tax although in Ontario there is an exception, that being that gifts between husband and wife are exempt.

Provincial governments said that imposition of the gift tax was made in order to protect the base for succession duties, income and capital gains tax. The Ontario treasury said the purpose of the tax is to "prevent erosion of the tax base" through gifts that might dissipate income, capital gains or estate value.

Gift taxes will range from 15 per cent on the first $25,000 value after exemptions to 50 per cent on amounts exceeding $200,000 after exemptions.

Gifts to anyone which do not exceed $2,000 in value as well as gifts to charities and governments and death-bed gifts would be exempt from the tax.

As for succession duties, the rates announced by the six provinces range from 10 per cent, payable on $10,000, to 50 per cent on amounts in excess of $300,000. No duty will be evied on estates less than $10,000. Sidney Spivak, leader of the Manitoba Progressive Conservative party, said the new tax regulations are so compli-cated they form a "guaranteed annual income for the accoun-tants and lawyers for the next few years." He said that tants and lawyers for the next few years." He said that with estates being taxed at a severe rate and capital gains being taxed during a person's lifetime, the old incentive to save and invest in order to build security for one's children will be gone.

The federal government will collect the succession taxes on behalf of the provinces, less a three-per-cent service charge.

The federal government will also collect the gift taxes for eight provinces. Quebec will collect its own, as it does with

RECIPROCAL

Under the present system, the federal government makes a rebate to the provinces of 75 per cent of the estate taxes collected.

In Alberta since 1967, the provincial government turned the 75 per cent back to the estate under a policy initiated by the former Social Credit government and endorsed by Longheed's Conservative administration.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia said Wednesday that B.C. will not increase its succession duties to occupy the 25 per cent abandoned by the federal government. He said the people of his province will have to wait until budget day in early February to find out whether any reductions in the B.C. succession duties are planned. He said there would be no increase.

Manitoba Finance Minister Saul Cherniak said only a few Manitobans would be affected by the taxes.

Manitobans would be affected by the taxes.

He said only about five per cent of Manitoba estates and about two per cent of Manitoba farms would be worth more than $150,000.

than $150,000.

In Ontario, Treasurer Darcy McKeough said the province's latest succession duty legislation and gift tax plan are not expected to be the last word and he has every intention of reviewing the two related taxes.

Raymond Garneau. Quebec's finance minister, told the National Assembly Dec. 23 that the people of Quebec will have an over-all reduction of 25 per cent in the amount of succession duties as the province takes over the tax.

A-G Hopes to See B.C. Swept by Moral Revival

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson said today he hopes that a new sense of morality is sweeping British Columbia.

Peterson told reporters that an end to topless and bottomless dancing in British Columbia nightclubs would be a good way to start giving more attention to "moral values" in the persuase.

Asked whether a new sense of morality is evident in the province, he replied: "I would hope so but I don't know if that is so."

Peterson was being questioned on earlier statements that he wants laws against top-less and bottomless dancing enforced.

He said today he hopes operators of night-clubs will voluntarily end such entertainment. But he gave no specific indication whether laws would be enforced to prevent it.

Peterson said discussions have taken place with Vancouver prosecutor Stewart McMorran on the subject, and McMorran confirmed that but declined to say what type of action could be expected.

Peterson said the Federal Criminal Code contains sections that could be applied against topless and bottomless dancing. He stressed that the laws are made by the federal government, not B.C.

NARAYANGANJ, East Pakistan (UPI) - A severe outbreak of cholera threatens the lives of the 30,000 Biharis held as prisoners without food or medical supplies in the world's biggest jute mill in this town 14 miles from Dacca. Dr. Nazir Ahmed, medical officer at the jute mill, said "there are so many cases of cholera and starvation I can't count them all." The Biharis are non-Bengali Moslems, most of whom came to East Pakistan from the west wing of the country. They are latted by the Bengali natives because they cooperated with the West Pakistan army. The Biharis say the Bengalis have killed 400 to 500 of them since Pakistan surrendered Dec. 16.

The Bengladesh government has denied them both food and medicine but an Indian army spokesman said arrangements were being made to bring in medical supplies because of the outbreak of cholera in the jute mill.

The Biharis are afraid to leave the mill for fear they will be killed by the Bengali guerrillas who call themselves the Mukti Bahini (freedom fighters). The Indians have placed a contingent of troops at the mill to protect those inside.

Maj. R. Kanwar, the Indian troop commander, said he was arranging for medical supplies but that food would remain the biggest problem even if medical aid arrived. He said International Red Cross relief plans have been blocked by the Bangladesh government.

Nazir said the Indian army troops had stopped the kill-ings by the Mukti Bahini but that local police were looting houses in the town while searching for so-called collabora-

S. Munir Ahmed, escretary to the mill's general manager, said the weekly wage of about $9 was no longer being paid to the 8,000 employees who worked before the mill closed down on Dec. 1.

The employees and their families have run out of money and could not even go to Dacca under Indian army protection to buy food, Munir said.

"Even if we go outside, we cannot buy anything because we have no money," he said.

Freighter Meets Her City

Times Staff

Victoria City meet the city of Victoria.

There was no such formal introduction when the 27,000-ton bulk carrier Victoria City eased into her berth at Ogden Point this waek, one year and five days after her launching. The formality came today when Mayor Courtney Haddock boarded the British boat named after this city.

There was an appealing speech, recited in unison by the captain's two young daughters, a quick drop curtsey and the presentation of one of the ship's Kisbey rings to the mayor.

The mayor, presented their father, Capt. James Murray, with a pewter plate, emblazoned with the city's coat of arms.

This is the Victoria City's 'call 'at the port for which she's She's the second of seven such ships to be built by the Reardon Smith Line.

All will be named after Canadian lumber ports; the first of her sister ships being the Vancouver City.

The line has 14 commercial vessels now in its fleet and another two being fitted out.

Murray says the decision to name the new bulk carriers after Canadian ports is a reflection of the confidence that the lumber and pulp trade is not heading for the slump so often predicted.

To anyone who's visited the tiny village of Bideford in North Devon it's an eyebrow-raiser to see it painted as her port registry on the stern of this efficient-looking ship.

Murray explains "Sir William Reardon Smith who started the company more than 70 years ago came from Bideford.

* * * "Although the harbor isn't big enough to even get one of our lifeboats in, Sir William's orders that every ship of the line be registered in Bideford still stands."

If her port of registry is unusual, so is the "home port" of

But, like his ship, Murray is well capable of handling any

At 40, Murray has 25 years of sea-time under his belt and expects to get in many more before he "swallows the anchor."

Elford Overruled On Windsor Bylaw The first 112 honorary citizens of Victoria picked up their awards at 3 p.m. today at city hall.

Oak Bay's Mayor Frances Elford was overruled by opposing aldermen Wednesday night in a bid to have a bylav covering development of the Vindsor block placed on next Monday's council agenda.

Led by Ald. Brian Smith, the aldermen insisted that de-veloper John Mace be asked to present plans for the Wind-sor block at Monday's meet-mayor asked that a bylaw de-signating the block bounded by Windsor, Goodwin, Currie and Newport as a develop-ment area be put on Monday's agenda.

She said there was no purpose in having Mace appear because the bylaw had no connection with his proposals.

Minutes later she warned council that if quick action was not taken the developer and Newport procedures the and Newport merchants who are joining him on his scheme might lose their options.

NO SQUIRTS

Smith said: "You don't go around designating development areas like squirts of un-derarm deodorant."

To the mayor's insistence that the development bylaw had no connection with Mace's proposal and that the designation step must be taken first, Smith replied:

mayor, "do you retain any objection to Mr. Mace appearing?"

She retorted: "Certainly

Council voted to have Mace and the merchants appear Monday and the bylaw in-troduced. Ald. Alan Hoey cast the only dissenting vote.

This is the second time this month the bylaw has been de-first three readings and was to have received final approv-al Wednesday night.

In a surprise move at the beginning of Wednesday's meeting, however, Ald. Doug-"The two things are tied in the public mind although in the matter of law they may be separate."

FOR BLOOD CLINICS

It was "a very good year"—the best since 1965—for blood donations from Victorians, Charles MacNeill, supervisor of the Red Cross blood donor panel, said today.

Out of 61 clinics held during 1971, 8,840 donors registered, with 366 rejections, for a total of 8,474 units of blood, which is 1,555 units better than last year when 55 clinics were held.

Saanich alderman-elect Fred (Whitey) Severson will take his seat at Monday's inaugural meeting of Saanich council, ignoring the controversy which surrounded one aspect of his election.

Danger! Good Resolutions at Work

THIS QUIET BYE-WEEK between Christmas past and New Year's coming has always been one of my favor-ite times. Nobody works any harder than need be. The United States today ended five con-secutive days of air strikes against North Vietnam, the most sustained and most inmost sustained and most in-tense ever ordered by Pres-ident Nixon. Already there was controversy over whether they were successful.

The U.S. command reported three planes lost in the raids with the loss of five airmen. Hanoi radio said 19 planes were shot down, eight of them today, and that two more today, and that two more pilots were captured. It gave no names and insisted the populated areas.

In South Vietnam there were conflicting claims from military men on whether the raids succeeded and whether the real aim was to hit North Vietnamese missile sites and anti-aircraft batteries as the command said.

STILL ASSESSING

The command itself served judgment on whether ing simply that bomb damage assessment was still in assessment was still in progress. High U.S. Air Force sources in Da Nang and Sai-gone reported the raids were very successful and told of fuel dumps, ammunition fuel dumps, ammunition stockpiles and at least one port left in flames.

Officials actually involved in executing the strikes were skepticat. They said "as far as we can tell, the bombing was a real failure. We hit very little." they said because of the height the pilots were forced to bomb from and the fact they could hardly see their targets through heavy clouds it was "improbable they hit much of anything."

These officers said they viewed the air strikes as little more than a stunt necessitated by a sudden rash of American planes shot down in Laos and North Vietnam two weeks ago. Four pilots captured at the time — before the five-day attack — were shown on U.S. television Wednesday

Asked whether a new sense of morality is evident in the province, he replied: "I would hope so but I don't know if that is so."

Peterson was being questioned on earlier statements that he wants laws against topless and bottomless dancing enforced.

He said today he hopes operators of night-clubs will voluntarily end such entertainment. But he gave no specific indication whether laws would be enforced to prevent it.

that but declined to say what type of action

But he said: "You wouldn't want your daughter doing this kind of thing, would you?"

Peterson also said he hadn't received many complaints about topless-bottomless dancing but had received "descriptions of what goes on."

Another Cabinet Leak

TORONTO (CP) Globe and Mail today quoted extensively from two con-fidential federal cabinet documents which it called the latest leak of secret government

Reunite* Pakistan -Bhutto

RAWALPINDI, East Pakistan (AP) — President Zulfikar Ali Bhutto has proposed to Shelk Mujibur Rahman that Bangladesh and West Pathat bangiadesh and west Pa-kistan reunite in a loose fed-eration similar to the ope in which Egypt, Syria and Libya have joined, highly-placed government officials said

The formula would mean virtual independence for both regions, with separate economies, political institutions and foreign relationships, the mes, pointeal institutions and foreign relationships, the sources said. They added that Bhutto believes the Bengalis in Pakistan's former eastern province want to find an alternative to complete depen-dence on India.

But diplomatic sources said they believed it unlikely that Sheik Mujib would come to agreement with Bhutto, or if he did that any agreement would be binding on the gov-ernment of Bangladesh.

They speculated that Bhutto also would try to make an agreement with India exchanging Sheik Mujib' for more than 100,000 West Pakis-tani soldiers and civilians trapped in the east. They said India was insisting on Mujib's quick return to the east to enquick return to the east to en-sure a firm foundation for government in Bangladesh dominated by the sheik's Awami League and friendly to Pakistani foreign office sources and foreign diplomats here say the Soviet Union was not in a hurry to see Shelk Mujib return because he was believed—to oppose participation in any eastern government of the Russian-backed National Awami party. This group has been seeking a national government and new elections in Balgladesh.

RUSSIA NOT ANATHEMA

Foreign office sources said it appeared that despite Soviet support of India during the war, Pakistan and Russia had attitude towards Bangadesh.

A spokesman for the National Awami, Party, which has no connection with the Awami League, said Bhutto. had told the party's leader, Khan Abdul Wali Khan, that he would lift martial law and allow representative govern-ment in Pakistan's four remaining provinces after the third week in January.

Bhutto has been trying to get the National Awami party to join his cabinet because it is the largest party in the Northwest Frontier and Balu-chistan, the smaller of the four provinces. The party spokesman said until Bhutto made good on his promises, the party would stay out of the government. In Bangladesh today, Prime Whister Tajuddin Ahmed re-

NARAYANGANJ, East Pakistan (UPI) - A severe outbreak of cholera threatens the lives of the 30,000 Biharis held as prisoners without food or medical supplies in the world's biggest jute mill in this town 14 miles from Dacca. Dr. Nazir Ahmed, medical officer at the jute mill, said "there are so many cases of cholera and starvation I can't count them all." The Biharis are non-Bengali Moslems, most of whom came to East Pakistan from the west wing of the country. They are hated by the Bengalis natives because they cooperated with the West Laistan army. The Biharis say the Bengalis have killed 400 to 500 of them since Pakistan surrendered Dec. 16.

The Bengladesh government has denied them both food and medicine but an Indian army spokesman said arrange-ments were being made to bring in medical supplies be-cause of the outbreak of cholera in the jute mill.

The Biharis are afraid to leave the mill for fear they will be killed by the Bengali guerrillas who call themselves the Mukti Bahini (freedom fighters). The Indians have placed a contingent of troops at the mill to protect those inside.

Maj. R. Kanwar, the Indian troop commander, said he was arranging for medical supplies but that food would remain the biggest problem eyen if medical aid arrived. He said International Red Cross relief plans have been blocked by the Rendedent by the Bangladesh government.

Nazir said the Indian army troops had stopped the kill-ings by the Mukti Bahini but that local police were looting houses in the town while searching for so-called collabora-

S. Munir Ahmed, secretary to the mill's general manager, said the weekly wage of about $9 was no longer being paid to the 8,000 employees who worked before the mill closed down on Dec. 1.

The employees and their families have run out of money and could not even go to Dacca under Indian army protection to buy food, Munir said. "Even if we go outside, we cannot buy anything because we have no money," he said.

Major Deals Affect Harbor

By CLEMENT CHAPPLE Times Staff

Two major transactions completed today by Ocean Cement Ltd. will have long-range effects on Victoria's Inner Harbor.

In Vancouver, Ocean Cement officials signed a contract approved Wednesday in Victoria for sale of the Wharf Street cement factory to the city for close to $1 million.

FREE RIDE ON ROME BUSES

ROME (Reuter) - Romans got free rides in buses and trolleys today as the city traffic jams.

No one will have to pay a fixed three-cent fare, normal for all bus and trolley routes, until Jan. 7.

"It is a little early to say, but it seems to be going well," beamed 47-year-old Giorgio La Morgia, president of the Rome public transport company, when he visited a central square this morning.
